WITH THE TAFT PARTY

Arrival at Honolulu-Incidents on the Trip from San Francisco.

(From an occasional correspondent of The Tribune.) Honolulu, Hawaii, July 14.
Henolulu awake early this morning prepared to receive visitors, and did it with a cordiality that was especially gratifying to the members of the Taf: party on board the Manchuria. The morning sun shone bright on a harbor in gala attire. From the masts of every vessel in port floated the American flag and as the ship approached a salute of seventeen guns in honor of the Secretary of War was fired from the naval station. A male quartet of native singers boarded the ship, and as soon as comparative quiet was restored sang several quaint Hawaiian melodies. As the Manchuria swung lowly into the pier, the Hawaiian band struck up Where Art Thou?" and kept it up until Miss Roosevelt appeared on deck. The following was the official programme of the reception and entertainment at Honolulu of the

commenting on Miss Roosevelt, "The Hawaiian Star" of July 14 had this to say:

People may talk as they please about Secretaries of War, about Senators or Governors or Congressmen, stout gentlemen, thin gentlemen, young, old or middle aged gentlemen, but, as a matter of fact, the prime interest of all of to-day's reception lay in the personality of Miss Alice Roosevelt, the daughter of the President of the United States. Was there one woman—or man, either, for that matter—who asked particularly which was the Secretary of War or which was the eloquent Sensors drifted down from the Manchuria this mering? There may have been, but if so the metter escaped notice. No. Every one asked the same question, "Which is Miss Roosevelt?" and the bright eyed girl wno stepped smilingly ashore at the call of "Come along, Alice," from Secretary Taft, plainly enjoyed the interest which was taken which herself. She was just the simple, straightforward American girl, and the fact that she enjoys in addition to being the daughter of the Chief Ixecutive, seemed to make mo difference to her. Miss Roosevelt is unquestionably a handsome firl, and she carries her good looks with a charming unconsciousness. It is something to be recorded when every woman on the good ship Manchuria had a good word to say for the young girl who occupies the position which Miss Roosevelt few pairs, despite all the fust and the people have made over ber, and there is nothing too nice to be said about her."

"The Pacific Commercial Advertiser" had the following word for the visiting Congressmen:

The United States needs a nava! station in Hawaii, which will enable it to concentrate a squadron, on short notice, at any point in the North Pacific.

North Pacific.

It also needs a great acclimation camp here so that troops, required anywhere in our tropical possessions, as in the Philippines, Samoa or Panama, may be drafted from a warm climate.

It also needs strong forts at Honolulu and Hilo, for if these islands should be taken by a powerful manal enemy, continuous war could be waged spainst the mainland and upon the routes of transfact trade.

It also needs a new postoffice at Honolulus.

Pacific trade.

It also needs a new postoffice at Honolulu and other administrative buildings.

Hawali would like to have Congress show its appreciation of all these needs, remembering that, since apprexation, the United States Treasury has absorbed about $10,000,000 of our former revenues. From expressions of the visitors on their return to the ship it is evident that the Hawaiian Islands will in the future receive careful consideration at

The party reached the Manchuria shortly before 6 o'clock, tired, but greatly pleased with the beauties of the island and enthusiastic over their welcome. Miss Roosevelt said: "The people of Hawaii are the most hospitable I have ever met,' and this expressed the view of the entire party.

nose westward through the Golden Gate, the Taft party, as it was unofficially called on the coast, breathed a grateful sigh of relief that it had scaped from the warm hearted though strenuous hospitality of San Francisco with nothing more se flous than an impaired digestion and loss of rest. The ship was a hower of roses, while the staterooms of Miss Roosevelt and other members of the party were banked with floral godspeeds. On the pier to witness the departure of the ship for the Orient was a great crowd, in which several nationalities were represented. The Orientals were huddled in distinctive attitudes, sitting on crossed legs and chatting like magpies. The Japanese were arrayed in gay colors, while the Chinese women were clad in sombre black, their smooth raven black hair colled in fantastic shapes and held in place by curious bands and pins of gilt and enamel. An occasional tear or gesture revealed the emotion back of the expressionless features, and as the ropes were drawn in and the ship moved out to sea a great shout arose from the sesticulating throng, and simultaneously the air was filled with the unique Chinese prayers for a safe voyage.

Lined up against the rail of the hurricane deck were Secretary Taft. Miss Roosevelt, Mrs. New-lands, Mrs. Payne, Mrs. Grosvenor and other mem-bers of the party, all of whom worked overtime in acknowledging the cheers and the waving of hand-kerchiefs. In a comparatively short time the desiening salutes of the craft in port and the boom of the guns were left behind, and the party turned its face toward the Far East in bright anticipation of a thoroughly enjoyable voyage.

On Sunday, the day following the departure from the Coast, nothing unusual occurred until General Grosvenor upset the quiet ease and comfort of the other men of the party by appearing about 6 Colock in a dress suit. Secretary Taft, Senators Scott and Newlands and Representative Payne were lounging around the social room, arrayed in loose flannels, and this vision startled the group into immediate action. Turning to Senator Scott, Secretary Taft said:

"Scott, what under heavens does Grosvenor mean by his dress parade?"

A consultation followed, and Scott, Newlands and Payne were appointed a committee to interview and atimidate General Grosvenor, who, however, flatly declined to abandon dressing for dinner, and the committee reported its findings to the Secretary. "Grosvenor ought to be ashamed of himself," the Secretary, sadly, "but we will have to follow his lead." He then started for his cabin. In the mean time General Grosvenor had shown himself mean time General Grosvenor had shown himself in every part of the ship, and in a surprisingly short time not a man of the party, except the Obloan could be found on deck. When the call for dinner was heard, the Congressional party almost to a man entered the dining saloon in evening dress. Several pointed remarks were aimed at General Grosvenor, but he "stood pat," and ever since none could be found sufficiently brave to appear at dinner in ordinary attire.

A canvas swimming tank is one of the popular attractions aboard ship. It is about twenty feet ong by ten fect wide and ten feet deep, and it is on the main deck. The tank is partially filled with sait water, and several of the party en-joy their dip before breakfast. Bathing suits may be found in abundance, and before 7 o'clock in the morning the huge tank and deck present the ap-pearance of a miniature seaside resort. Secretary Taft has not yet indulged in the luxury, but other members of the party plunge around in the can-yas sea bath with all the delight and abandon of youngsters "goin' in swimmin'."

Lectures or informal talks on interesting topics are given almost daily in the social room, and attract large audiences. Secretary Taft has been in constant attendance, but last Wednesday, while Colonel Edwards was discoursing bravely on conditions in the Philippines, he fell asleep, and he went at his task so earnestly that every one present at his task so carnestly that every one present knew it. After one especially noticeable period of his slumber Representative Hill nudged him so vigorously that he awoke with a snort anid shouts of laughter. Colonel Edwards at dinner the following day in announcing the speaker for the evening said: "All who have taken their afternoon naps are invited to the talk, but all others are excluded."

On Tuesday evening the hurricane deck was transformed into a miniature ballroom, and the impression of that dance will long remain vivid in minds of those who participated and the onlookers. The music brought from the home land blended with the song of the sea, while the dark draperies of the flags shut out the night and only draperies of the flags shut out the night and only the soft light from the lanterns revealed the dancers. Among them glided representatives of many nations—the Philippines, Japan, Hawaii and the United States. It was late before Miss Roosevelt, escorted by Representative Longworth, appeared among the gaily dressed dancers. In the wavering light she looked almost unreal in her clinging gown which matched the sea. As she glided through the dance, her long spangled scarf wound itself around her, serpent like, permitting only fleeting glimpses of the single rose nestling in her breast.

Secretary Taft danced frequently, and no man on the floor was lighter on his feet than the big Cabinet officer.

The death, either by accident or design, of Walter Sullivan, of San Antonio, Tex., cast a gloom over the entire ship. He was not a member of the official party, but was well known to many of its Mr. Sullivan was evidently in good spirits on Wednesday evening and bought two of the pools auctioned off on the day's run. He later played cards with a party of friends. Representative McKinley and a friend were seated on the main deck about midnight, when she exclaimed that a man had fallen overboard. He reassured her, but it seems probable that it was the body of the ill-fated young man that she had seen flash by her and sink in the blackness of the sea, for a thorough search of the ship the following morning showed that he was lost. Mr. Su'livan was about twenty-four years old and was recently graduated from college.

RUSH AT ELLIS ISLAND.

Undesirable Immigrants Pouring In, Mr. Sargent Says.

[FROM THE TRIBUNE BUREAU.]

Washington, Aug. 3 .- "Never in all the trips that I have made to Ellis Island have I seen so many immigrants of the undesirable class," said Frank P. Sargent, Commissioner General of Immigration, to-day.

Mr. Sargent has just returned to the city from a visit to the Ellis Island station, and while he disclaimed any desire to spread a sensational rumor he repeated more than once the statement above quoted.

As to the cause for this condition, he suggested that probably all the desirable immigrants had come into the country early in the summer and that the present class represents those who could not get passage earlier. Steamship companies are now accepting a less desirable class than during the rush season.

Mr. Sargent does not intimate that steps will be taken to turn back these latest arrivals. He thinks the year's average will balance up fairly well despite present conditions. Mr. Sargent said that he found everything else satisfactory at Ellis Island. In the hot period of two weeks ago the sanitary precautions and medical attendance were such that no deaths occurred. This, in view of the crowded condition of the station at that time, he considered a tribute to its management.

Mr. Sargent is in favor of the plan suggested by Commissioner Watchorn that a union railroad station for the exclusive use of immigrants be erected at a convenient point on the Jersey shore. He has informally approved the scheme, believing it will simplify matters both from the Immigration Bureau's point of view and also from that of the railroads.

CORK BLINDS GIRL.

Loses Eye from Accident While Opening Bottle.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]
Atlantic City, Aug. 3.—Struck in the right eye with a cork while opening a bottle of root beer on Monday, Miss Bessie Bailey, fifteen years old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Bailey, of Rhode Island-ave., has lost that eye, and it is feared will lose the other.

That the accident was serious was not learned until the following day when a Philadelphia physician, who had heard of it, examined the injured eye and advised the girl's immediately removal to an oculist. Mr. Bailey took the girl to the Wills Eye Hospital, Philadelphia, where it was found that the eye was sightless. It was removed to save the sight of the left eye.

NO INCREASE IN INSURANCE RATES. Catholic Order of Foresters Votes Against Proposed Change.

Boston, Aug. 3 .- The attempt to increase the insurance rates in the Catholic Order of Foresters at the convention of the international body in this city failed to-day after a long discussion, 112 delegates voting in favor of and 97 against the change, less than the necessary two-thirds required by the constitution. AWAIT TAIT'S ARRIVAL

Many Knotty Tangles.

(From an occasional correspondent of The Tribune.)
Manila, P. I., July 1.—The government and the people are making extensive preparations to entertain the Secretary of War and his party during their stay in the Philippines. They will be met by the Governor and Civil Commission, accompanied by all the minor officials able to be in Manila when the party arrives. The military will turn out in full force, and the different commercial and social organizations have arranged a series of receptions and dinners, only equalled by the similar chain of entertainment tendered the Secretary of War before he left here two years ago. The visit of the Secretary at this time will be most opportune. There are many knotty questions which it is hoped his tact and skilful persistence will help to unravel. The opening of the railways, the final settlement of the friar lands' titles, the reduction of the civil staff, the reorganization of the constability and the readility of the inthe constabulary and the readjustment of the internal revenue laws are waiting his arrival.

Since Secretary Taft's departure there has been a steady improvement in conditions in the Philippines, but, unfortunately, not as rapid nor as satisfactory as during his regime. This is not the fault of Governor Wright or his Cabinet, but is the re-suit of certain unforeseen developments in the general scheme of pacification and exploitation adopted by the United States government. While Governor Wright is looked upon with the greatest honor and respect by the Filipinos, he has not so well developed a sense of humor, nor has he the patience and "jollying" power which enabled Secretary Taft to handle the intricate questions necessarily arising in the government of a foreign and illiterate people by an American commission.

The character of the Filipino is unfathomable:

its elusiveness has been commented upon by all who have given a thought to the question. Probably the best example possible of the inability of the Caucasian to fathom the Malay was given by a Spanish priest who for years was supposed to be studying the Filipino character, recording his ob-servations in an immense tome which he kept un-der lock and key, giving instructions that it should not be opened until his death. In time venerable father was taken away. After due formality the book was opened in the presence of the Archbishop and other high dignitaries of the Church. From beginning to end the pages were blank. Tucked carefully away in the corner of the leather binding inside the last cover, as if he feared to spoil the virginity of the white pages by his last summing up, a note was found, on which, in the trembling hand of the aged investigator, was written: "The foregoing pages contain all I know o the people of the Philippine Islands."

recent example, showing how unreliable are the Filipinos, occurred at the time President Roose-velt offered Secretary Taft a position on the Supreme bench.

The native leaders were afraid that a change of administration at this particular time might weaken their power and bring on a more unsettled state of affairs. Working along these lines, they petitioned the President that Taft be retained. The streets of Manila were placarded with signs reading "Queremos a Taft" (We want Taft). In the provinces even more striking and forcible sentiments were expressed.

It remained for the town of Lipa, noted as being the hotbed of insurrection, to cap the climax of this agitation by placing the Governor in the equivocal position of leading an embryo insurrec-

The Governor, accompanied by other members of the commission, left Manila for the purpose of investigating conditions in the Province of Batangas. After ascending the Pasig River and cross ng the Laguna de Bay to Calamba, the Gover took army escort wagons to complete the overland journey to the capital of the province. The party was augmented from time to time by native bands and walking delegations from the different villages on route. The last town of any size before reaching the city of Batangas was Lipa. Here gathered the entire populace of the pueblos, with some three hundred or four hundred natives marshalled in marching order, with bands and illuminations galore. The Governor was much pleased with the apparent warmness of his reception, and "noticed with pride" the banners bearin gthe inscription "Queremos a Taft!" "Viva los EE, UU.," and other equally significant sentences.

As was usual in such cases, the Governor made a short speech, in which he thanked the worthy people for their efforts on behalf of good govern nent, and, leaning back in his impromptu carriage of state, indulged in a dream of the days when the military should be no more, when the sweet dove of peace should descend upon his beloved people, and the world at large recognize that the Taft conciliatory policy was the only one sure to succeed with an Oriental people.

Darkness had descended in tropical splendor ere the procession reached Batangas, which, illuminated in honor of the arrival of the Governor, glowed

The bands in the procession were discoursing their national airs, it populace was cheering, and all seemed as festivand gay—and patriotic—as even the smiling Governor could wish.

Great was the applause, fervent the music, an as the procession wove its way through the we of streets and emerged on to the plaza, where it Governor was to alight, the cheering of the Amer can soldiers and civilians seemed to add the or touch necessary to complete the picture of pear of streets and emerged on to the plaza, where the Governor was to alight, the cheering of the American soldiers and civilians seemed to add the one touch necessary to complete the picture of neace which had occupied the Governor's mind during the last stages of his journey.

Suddenly the cheering and the music stopped as if by magic, and soon arose the strains of "Aguinaldo's March," played in a most feeling manner by the band which accompanied the Lipa contingent, and, horror of horrors, the inscriptions on the banners now read.

"If we don't have Taft we insurrect!"

"Taft or war!"

"Taft the next king of the Philippines!"

Again had the wily Tagal got the best of his overlord. It was one of those situations which called for that discreet silence and sweet reasonableness which he had so often preached to his American conferes, and with a sigh and a wave of his hand the worthy Governor dismissed his secort of honor and his dream of neace and entered into the quarters prepared for him by the military.

ARGUMENT IN MADDEN CASE.

Wife Accuses Horseman of Placing Sons in Charge of Prizefighter.

Justice Sewell, of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn heard an argument yesterday on a motion to set aside the subpoena he issued a few days ago for John E. Madden, a well known horseman, com-manding him to appear before a notary, and be exmined in an action, pending in the Common Pleas Court, of Hamilton County, Ohio, in which his wife, Anna Louise Madden, seeks to obtain alimony. Mrs. Madden was in court. She alleges that her susband took their two boys, Edward, eleven years old, and Joseph, slx, from a private school, in violation of an agreement, and placed them in the care of a prizelighter and a bartender at Sheepshead Bay. Mr. Madden denied the allegation.

Mrs. Madden denies the allegations in her husbands action for divorce in Kentucky, regarding her association with Albert Simons, Laura Simons and Louis V. Bell, and says that she was introduced to them by her hashand, who was a partner with Simons, and that she never heard her husband refer to Bell except in terms of praise.

AGED VISITORS CANNOT LAND.

The decisions of special hoards of inquiry in three ases of immigrants held up at Ellis Island have been set aside and rehearings ordered, and four persons, two of them men past seventy years of age, were happy yesterday in consequence. The unfortunates are Andreas Dumraus, fifty-five years old, and his wife, fifty-four. They were turned hack because of their age. WILKIE FOUND NO GRAFT.

Filipinos Hope He Will Unravel Secret Service Chief Denies a Story About His Trip to China.

[FROM THE TRIBUNE BUREAU.]
Washington, Aug. 3.—A sensational story published to-day that Chief Wilkie of the Secret Service went to China and Japan to investigate charges of corruption among marine hospital surgeons stationed in those countries was promptly denied by Mr. Wilkie.

"I did not go abroad to make such an investigation," he said, "and I did not make any such investigation or attempt to make one."

The story was that marine hospital surgeons sent to China and Japan to look after the health of immigrants to this country have been demanding and accepting from Chinamen $50 for furnishing them clean bills of health to land in the United States. Chief Wilkie said the report was false, but added that he met a physician in Hong Kong who told him that such a story was circulated by some persons in China-His informant said that he had looked into the matter and found that a private physician in Hong Kong was charging Chinamen considerable sums of money for inspecting them and telling them whether or not they would pass muster as to their health when they reached this country. Chief Wilkie did not follow the information given him, as it was not in his line.

Secretary Shaw, when asked about the story to-day, said he recently received a letter from a man asking for facts about the Secret Service. "I wrote him," said the Secretary, "that I was sorry to say that if I should tell him all he wanted to know the Secret Service would no longer be secret." That was the extent of the information furnished by the Secretary.

The Tribune announced when he sailed for China that he would look into the issue of fraudulent certificates to immigrants. A year or so ago some consular officers were dismissed from the service on the ground that they were guilty of affixing their consular seals to false certificates, which were sold to Chinamen for large sums. It was alleged by the men who were dismissed that the seals were stolen and used by the gang that the seals were stolen and used by the gang issuing the certificates. The certificates have continued to be issued since the dismissals of the consuls, and this government is anxious to catch the gang now operating with the seals.

TRIED SUICIDE "FOR FUN."

Badly Wounded Man Will Give No Other Reason for It. Joseph E. Hartog, twenty years old, was removed from his home, No. 412 4th-ave., early last evening, with a gunshot wound in his right temple, which the police say was self-inflicted. Hartog boarded with a Mrs. Richard Johnson. On Wednesday evening he came home about 11 o'clock and at once retired to his room. Yesterday nothing was heard from him. At 5 o'clock Miss Amanda Magison, who s employed in the house, rapped at his door, and, who broke down the door.

Hartog was found on the floor, in his night clothes, a stream of blood from a hole in his right temple had made a puddle on the floor about his head, and had dried hard. The wounded man was onsclous, and was suffering severely. Dr. Buroughs was called from the New-York Hospital, and the man was taken there. It was said later that ne would recover, although he will lose the sight of "What made you want to kill yourself?" asked

O'Brien before the man was removed. In spite of his pain the wounded man smiled weakly.

"Oh, I just did it for fun," he gasped. Further than this he would say nothing.

From the condition of the blood and the fact that Hartog was in his nightclothes, it is believed that he had lain on the floor for over twelve hours, un-able to call for help or do himself further harm. on the floor beside Hartog when he was found was pistol, one chamber of which had been discharged. No reason could be assigned for his act, Johnson said that she knew little of her boarder. He had always paid his way promptly, but had seen out of work for several days.

It is not thought that the charge of having poisoned two of his wives to get their insurance will stand, but it is thought the bigamy charges will be proven, for he the bigamy charged wifete Sherwood Bird while he had another wife living.

Chicago Police Catch Fourteen After Race Around the Lake.

Chicago, Aug. 3.-Gamblers intent on playing the races and policemen determined to prevent all racetrack betting on Lake Michigan had an exciting struggle to-day. Policemen and gamblers raced around the lake, first into Michigar waters, then close to the shore of Illinois, and then into the jurisdiction of Indiana,

The net result of the day was the capture of fourteen weary marine gambiers, who floated ashore at South Chicago in a launch. All the others, after a hot chase by the police in a fire tug, escaped to Indiana Harbor, Ind., and made their way ashore outside of the jurisdiction of the Chicago pelice.

Chief of Police Collins announced two days ago that he would no longer permit the operation of the floating poolroom City of Traverse He asserted that he would arrest all men who attempted to board the steamer, saying that they were about to commit an illegal act which brought them within police jurisdiction.

The gamblers circumvented the chief of police at the outset by causing the steamer City of Traverse to be run out into the lake, where she lay all through the morning waiting for the cargo of bettors. Large details of police were placed on the shore, guarding the approaches to all points from which the gamblers might make their way to the lake. The authorities expected that the bettors would leave Chicago on the City of Traverse, but instead of this a small excursion steamer, the Eagle, had been chartered, and the gamblers, walking past the police, embarked and started for the City of Traverse, which was rolling around in midlake. The police were powerless to intercept any of the "excursionists," as they called themselves, and it has been intimated to several of them that it watched them sail away to place their money on this period of drilling the naval militia the squad

The announced programme of the managers of the floating poolroom was that all passengers would be landed at 92d-st., South Chicago, where the Calumet River empties into Lake Michigan. Chief Collins, balked in his attempt to prevent the sailing of the gamblers on the Eagle, transferred his forces to 92d-st. and posted them along the shore in such a manner that it would have been impossible for any man from the City of Traverse or the Eagle to set foot on shore and escape arrest. Late in the day the Eagle steamed into the harbor at South Chicago loaded with 200 men who were anxious to reach shore. As soon as the boat was well in the bridge was swung behind it. With escape to the lake cut off by the bridge and no possible chance of a safe landing on shore the case of the gamblers for a time looked desperate. The Eagle circled around in the harbor, blowing her whistle for the bridge to turn and allow the steamer to return to the lake. The police stood on the shore and laughed, feeling confident that it was only a question of time before the passengers of the Eagle would be in their power.

A mud scow came up and whistled for the bridge to open. The bridge tender was compelled to swing the bridge, and the Eagle, planting her bow squarely in the stern of the mud scow, crowded it closely as it passed through the bridge, and then ran for the open lake.

As soon as the police discovered the approach of the mud scow and realized that the bridge must open, they made a rush for the fire tug Yosemite, and by the time the Eagle was entering the lake the tug was tearing after it, loaded with policemen. The Eagle headed directly toward the waters which are within the jurisdiction of Indiana, with the Yosemite in chase. The Eagle steadily drew away from the tug, and after a run of ten miles the police were forced to give up the chase and return to South Chicago. The Eagle continued on and landed at Indiana Harbor, where all the passengers went to Chicago by train.

Before the arrival of the Eagle at South Chlcago a launch came in, bearing a number of gambiers from the City of Traverse and several fishermen. All the passengers on the launch gamblers from the cast is shermen. All the passengers on the launch were lined up on the pler and compelled to stand in a heavy rain while the police weeded out the fishermen from the "excursionists." Fourteen men who could not prove that they had been fishing were loaded into patrol wagons and carried to a police station.

Chief Collins to-night said that he was disappoint to the second of the Eagle but found.

pointed by the escape of the Eagle, but found some comfort in the fact that the passengers on the launch had been gathered in. He declared they would be prosecuted to the fullest extent. they would be prosecuted to the fullest extent.

"Of course," he said, "we can do nothing when the boat is in Indiana waters. But if the gamblers attempt to board the boat again we will go begging for candidates for the pay corps. There are about twelve vacancies in that branch of the service, and the examination of the candidates will not take place until next January. There are already several hundred applications on file in the Bureau of Navigation from those who wish to be appointed assistant paymaster. The examination will be held only in Washington. It has een decided that it is not worth while to hold on examination at San Francisco, even for the ac-commodation of those who live on the Pacific Coast. would not have been held this year had it not en for the persistent request from one of the candidates, who lived in San Francisco, and who after the opportunity was afforded him to appear before the examining board, falled to present himself. The corps of civil engineers is not faring so well in the matter of candidates, and the eight places in that branch are likely to remain unfilled. although arrangements have been made to give the widest publicity to the examination, which will take place in New-York on October 3. There are also vacancies in the naval medical corps, and it is not found an easy matter to fill the places, although the examining board is in session practi-cally the year through.

NAVAL MILITIA CRUISES .- Some difficulty has been encountered by the naval authorities in obtaining ships for service in connection with the naval militia this summer. None of the commanding officers are inclined to break up their squadrong, even temporarily, for this purpose, althoug ron commander may have leave of absence and half of the crews will be allowed to go on fur-lough. Already the Brooklyn, the Columbia, the Tacoma and the Chattanooga have been assigned to take out the New-Jersey, Cannecticut, Pennsyl-vania and Maine organizations of the militia, re-spectively. One week of cruising and drill at sea will be allotted to each militia body.

BOAT RACING PROMOTED .- Aquatic sports in the navy have increased in the last few months, largely by virtue of the enthusiasm with which ch contests are regarded by Rear Admiral R. D. Evans, commander in chief of the North Atlant fleet, and Captain J. E. Pillsbury, his chief of staff. Arrangements have been made so that every has Arrangements have seen make so that every ac-ticship and armored cruiser of the fleet shall have among its small boats a racing cutter, designed and built according to standard plans made by the Bureau of Construction and Repair. These racing cutters are being built at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, and will be shipped to the vessels as ratily as they are completed.

SENTENCE MODIFIED.-The President has approved the findings in the case of First Lieutenant Lanier Cravens, Artillery Corps, who was convicted of intoxication while on duty. He was sentenced to dismissal, but won the recommendation of the chief of staff. He will be reduced ninety-three numbers and remain in the army.
